

Advertisement

NOW IS THE TIME TO
get the ultimate travel notebook and
GET MORE OUT OF NOW.

ROLL OVER
for additional INFORMATION

* weights vary depending on configurations and
manufacturing variability

USA TODAY

Classifieds: Cars cars.com | Jobs careerbuilder.com | Dating eHarmony.com | USA TODAY

- Home
- News
- Travel
- Money
- Sports
- Life
- Tech
- Weather

Search

powered by

- Tech Products
- Products home
- Edward C. Baig
- Jinny Gudmundsen
- Marc Saltzman
- Wireless Center
- Hotspot finder
- Wi-Fi primer
- Columnists
- Columnists index
- Andrew Kantor
- Kim Komando
- Kevin Maney
- Eric J. Sinrod
- WonderQuest
- More Tech
- Hot Sites
- Tech briefs
- Shareware Shelf
- Ask Kim Komando
- Science & Space
- RSS feeds
- Classifieds
- Marketplace
- Music
- Shopping
- Special Offer

Tech Products

▪ E-MAIL THIS ▪ PRINT THIS ▪ SAVE THIS ▪ MOST POPULAR ▪ SUBSCRIBE

Posted 8/21/2005 7:44 PM

With the Internet, the blind date is vanishing

By Rebecca Heslin, Gannett News Service

Typing fingers have replaced sweaty palms. Computer chimes substitute for awkward silences. And Internet supersleuths who want to know what they're getting into are phasing out the blind date.

"You can get online to research a person and find out who they are before meeting them," says Bridget Koza of Colonia, N.J. "It's never really a blind date anymore."

Using the Web to research people before making contact is becoming the norm for many teens and twenty-somethings. They want to see everything from a potential date's picture to his or her credit history. Love might be many things, but with the Web, blind doesn't have to be one of them.

"Technological improvements made possible another way of imagining human relationships," says Sorin Matei, a communications assistant professor at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind. "Before, dating was the product of fate, luck and the quest for romance."

Eyes wide open

Personals: Peruse national sites like Match.com and eHarmony; check your local newspaper's website for online personal ads.

Now, "some would-be daters want to imagine a world where you take the fate and luck aspects out and put in some sort of rationality."

Today's Top Tech Stories

- Exposed to a flood of filth, be bulldozed - 10:36 PM
- New Google search engine 'blogging' - 9:57 PM
- Nokia wades into crowded market - 9:47 PM
- Black hole lurks in invisible - 9:21 PM
- Dutch to open electronic file children - 8:39 PM
- Add USATODAY.com RSS

E-Mail Newsletters

Sign up to receive our free Tech newsletter and get the latest Tech Sites & more in your inbox.

E-

Newspaper Classifieds

Advertisement

Advertisement

Social networks: Websites such as Thefacebook, Friendster and MySpace allow you to meet your friends' friends.

Search engines: Using engines such as Google and Yahoo, type the name of the person in quotations for specific results. This is less helpful if you're researching someone with a common name.

Background checks: If you're looking for an address, credit history or a criminal record, you can usually find help for a small price. Sites include ZABAsrch, Pretrieve, Easy Background Check and Background Check Gateway.

Technology has made anonymity largely a thing of the past. The Internet is now the little black book, a clearinghouse to meet and research potential dates.

"There are all kinds of services that allow anyone to do on-the-spot background searches," Matei says. "The amount of information you can get on someone is just scary. These things have become so accessible and so cheap you can do lots of research."

Web sites including Google, online social networks such as Thefacebook.com and online background searches allow people to check others out without having to leave their chairs.

That's not necessarily a good thing, says Kathleen McNerney of Cincinnati. She says it's "creepy" to know little details about a person before a first date. "Our culture is always seeking control, and we want to be in control of the situation," she says. "We don't want to trust someone blindly."

And some old fundamentals still apply. "At the end of the day, what matters in dating is how well people get along and whether they're attracted to one another," says Chris Hughes, a Harvard student and co-creator of Thefacebook, originally a tool designed at Harvard to digitize the old-fashioned yearbook and provide interesting facts to allow the freshman class to get to know one another. "Technology can provide preliminary information, but it won't transform the dating scene."

McNerney agrees.

"Regular dating won't disappear, and after a while I think people will revert back to it," she says. "Technology can become alienating after a while, and people will want to sit down for a meal instead of at their computer screen."

mail:

Select one: HTM

 Related advertising links What's this?

Portable Audio Solution -
USB Flash Drives
Custom USB Flash Drives
with your Company Logo!
Imprint your company's logo and preload your music or data on the most practical promotional item
today. 64MB only $12.00.

www.memorysuppliers.com

Laptop Batteries
Go Electronic has great prices on laptop
batteries for hundreds of different computer
makes and models.

www.goelectronic.com

Laptop batteries,
chargers, pda
accessories & more
Compaq, Toshiba, De
IBM, Sony, Apple, H
Palm. Factory-direct
Prices, Same-day Shi
30-day Money-back
Guarantee, and 1-yea
warranty.

www.laptopsforless.com

Place your ad here

Subscribe Today: Home Delivery of USA TODAY - Save 35%

USATODAY.com partners: USA Weekend • Sports Weekly • Education •
Space.com

Home • Travel • News • Money • Sports • Life • Tech • Weather

Resources: Mobile news • Site map • FAQ • Contact us • E-mail news
Jobs with us • Internships • Terms of service • Privacy policy • Media kit •
Press room

Add USATODAY.com RSS feeds  Add USATODAY.com headlines to your Web site

© Copyright 2005 USA TODAY, a division of Gannett Co. Inc.